RECORD THROG VIEWS CONTEST

Visitors Put Up Courageous Battle, But Fail
To Score

A smooth working Salem High school football machine swept to a 18 to 0 victory over Lisbon's Blue Devils in the 28th annual engagement of the two schools out at Reilly stadium last night.

The largest crowd of the season, estimated by school officials to have been between 6,000 and 7,000 persons, watched the Quakers play their last night game of the 1937 campaign as a feature of Salem's annual Mardi-Gras celebration.

It was the Quakers' third win in as many years, and the second straight victory over a Columbiana county opponent.

Although minus the services of Max Lutsch, pile-driving full-back who is nursing a leg injury, each Carl Schroeder's charges lined up as impressive a performance as they did last week when they conquered Wellsview, 26 to 0.

Except for a late second quarter threat in which they moved the ball to the Salem one-yard stripe before Salem's forward wall stiffened and held for downs, Lisbon never had a chance against the bigger and more powerful Quakers.

The husky Salem forward wall, composed of Ends Bill Schaeffer and Ed Minamyer, Tackles Leonard Small and Dick Beck, Guards Charles Wentz and Bob Kirchmeier and Center Mike Cerbi, was truly too strong for Lisbon to penetrate consistently with its running attack.

The Blue Devils made only 76 yards from rushing and the majority of these were picked up or held at the line.

The big Salem linemen charged and fast on defense and kept well on offense to open nice holes for ball-carriers.

The performance of the Salem team, which showed a little bit of everything, including a goal-line stand, was the important factor in the Quakers' victory. However, the Quaker backfield cannot be slighted. Ole Olicka, the Red and Black's running attack which brought to the new ball-carriers in Gil-berth, substitute for Lutsch.

Hunt Shoots Sunday For Club's Trophy

Seeking permanent possession of the C. S. Chisholm trophy, Nate Hunt will be after his third straight win in the monthly trophy shoot at the Salem Country club's trap and skeet ranges tomorrow.

Hunt has won the monthly shoot in succession and needs only victory tomorrow to keep the trophy, which is symbolic of the club's trap and skeet shooting championship.

About 25 shooters will attempt to wrest the trophy from him in Sunday's event.

Among recent improvements at the club ranges is the new enclosed trap on the gun house. Large numbers in the porch give spectators inside the house a good view of the shooting on the trap range.

At the conclusion of the celebration, the throngs moved on Reilly stadium to witness the Salem-Lisbon football game, which ended in an 18 to 0 victory for Salem. A record crowd estimated at 6,000 persons saw the game.

HAHN DEFENSE CHARTS PLANS

Cincinnati Woman Expected to Testify in Own Behalf in Poison Trial

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29.—Attorneys for Anna Marie Hahn charted today the strategy by which they hope to save her from the state's demand that she die as the accused poison slayer of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner.

Hiram C. Bolsinger, Sr., a member of the defense counsel, said Mrs. Hahn would take the stand in her own defense, but he was silent on other phases of an expected attack on the prosecution's contention that the former German housemaid poisoned not only Wagner, but three other elderly men of modest means.

Chief Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin was expected to ask for a directed acquittal.

Judge Charles S. Bell announced he would permit Hoodin to name his own chemists to analyze the bodies of the four acquaintances of Mrs. Hahn who, the state trooper contended, died of a deadly poison "commonly used to kill rats."

The state introduced a surprise witness, Dr. Robert A. Kehoe, who disclosed that a poison similar to the metallic poison he said was found in the lining of Mrs. Hahn's pocketbook was in the viscera of Albert Palmer, one of the alleged poison victims.

Members of defense staff indicated that "not more than 10" witnesses would be placed on the stand to defend the woman.

East Palestine Contest
Threatens G. O. P.
Party Split

Board of election officials expect at least 30,000 of Columbiana county's 41,000 voters to march to the polls Tuesday to ballot on mayoralty and other contests in nine of 12 communities. In addition, they will decide 10 revenue measures, two wet-dry issues and one councilmanic referendum.

Of principal interest in Salem is the mayor contest between George R. Harroff, Republican, seeking a second term, and George McArtor, Democrat. The campaign has been a quiet one.

The Perry township constable race also is attracting considerable attention, with six aspirants seeking two posts. Constables Frank Eckstein and George H. Morris are seeking reelection, while opposing them are Lloyd Ormes, Harvey D. Pelo, Harold V. Shepard and E. Thomas Tice.

The Salem public school district is asking the renewal of the three-mill school levy, necessary for operating expenses. The levy is renewed every five years.

Voters throughout the county will pass judgment upon a tax levy of three-fourths of a mill to raise $50,000 as Columbiana county's share of a proposed $125,000 school building at the Fairmount Children's home near Alliance.

Heated mayoralty contests are under way in East Palestine and East Liverpool.

Split Threatened

The East Palestine contest threatens a Republican party split, with the entry of Howard R. Garrod, Independent, supported by the Republican incumbent, Enoch Faulkner, who was defeated for a third term nomination in the Aug. 10 primary election.

Mayor O. Earl Greenwalt, Republican, seeking a third term, is battling Lee Copenhagen, Democrat, in East Liverpool.

Pure water, with a dispute on the method of obtaining it, is the issue in Wellsview, where Howard L. Kelley, Republican incumbent, is opposed by Charles Kraus Sr., Democrat.

Other mayoral nominees are: Lisbon, G. Cecil Rauch, Republican incumbent, unopposed for a fourth term; Salineville, John O'Donnell, Democratic incumbent, seeking a third term, and C. R.

GUARDS AT PEN THWART ESCAPE

Fire at Three Cuyahoga County
Prisoners Who Attempt To Scale Walls

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30.—Ohio state penitentiary guards frustrated an attempted escape early today firing at three Cuyahoga county prisoners who had planned to scale the walls. None was wounded.

Warden James Woodward named the Bo as Frank Persa and Paul and Berard Tvasko, serving 10 to 15 years each on robbery charges.

They quietly slipped away from their night shift jobs in the prison bakery at 3:30 a. m., obtained a ladder previously hidden, and were headed for the east wall when Guard James Richards saw them and fired two shots, Woodward said. The prisoners fled to the planing mill and were captured by three other guards a few minutes later without a struggle.

Flood Proves No Boon to Pupils After All!

VOTERS READY AT COLUMBIANA

Several Warm Contests Boost Interest In Election

COLUMBIANA, Oct. 30.—Voters in Precinct A will have a new polling place for Tuesday's election. The booth will be located in the C. R. Heck building, recently occupied by the Parkway Motors, East Park ave., instead of in the Koch Motors building, as has been the case for several years.

There is a little more pre-election activity in Columbiana than has been the case during most local election years, due to the rivalry for several offices. In addition to local and township officers, voters here will express their wishes on a continuance of the three-mill school levy for another five-year period; also on a 1/2 mill levy for one year only to assist in building a school building at the Fairmount Children's home.

Local school officials wish it understood that there is no increase in tax proposed here, as the three-mill levy has been in effect here for 16 years, and its continuance is necessary if the schools are to participate in the state school foundation program and secure state aid.

STILL IS BLAMED IN FOUR DEATHS

Faulty Operation of Illicit Plant
Held Responsible for Family Tragedy

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Faulty operation of an illicit whisky still was held by police and firemen today as the possible cause of the deaths of four members of one family last night.

Responding to a fire which they said apparently had started when the whisky still boiled dry, firemen reported the bodies were found in various parts of the fire-swept dwelling but were untouched by the flames.

Police said the victims, a man and wife and their two daughters, apparently were overcome by natural gas fumes or by carbon monoxide fumes.

Coroner S. R. Gerber said the four were identified as Marcus Schneider, his wife, Ethel, and Lois Weideman, 9, and Rosemary Weideman, 12, daughters of the woman by a former marriage.

Federal agents of the alcohol tax unit said investigation disclosed a 300-gallon still, 1,600 gallons of mash and 100 gallons of whisky in the dwelling.

The fire was discovered by a neighbor who saw smoke curling from the roof of the house. Firemen said they found Schneider and his wife in a bedroom, one daughter in a bathroom, and the other in a hallway. They said all were clad in night clothes.

MISSIONARIES TO TELL OF WAR

Home from China, Couple
Will Speak at Christian Church

Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Plopper, who recently returned from the war area of China, will speak at the Christian church Sunday morning.

Dr. Plopper is a teacher in the Union Theological seminary at Nan-king. Mrs. Plopper is supported by the Salem Christian church.

Their contact with the country now involved in war with Japan will assure an interesting program. Dr. Plopper will speak at the worship service at 10:30, and Mrs. Plopper will speak in Sunday school.

Dr. and Mrs. Plopper are home on furlough at the present time, and during their stay in America are studying at Yale university. During the past week they have been attending the International convention of Christian churches in Columbus.

In connection with the missionary breakfast on Friday, Dr. Plopper presented a very dramatic presentation of conditions in China at the present time. Because of the general interest in this subject, an invitation is extended to the public to attend this service.

Relief Clients To Receive Potatoes

Between 700 and 800 pounds of sweet potatoes will be distributed by the city to relief clients Monday and Tuesday.

The families on relief are requested by Mrs. Ruth Berry, city stenographer, to call at city hall on either day for their orders.

The potatoes are coming from the surplus food warehouse at Lisbon. Apples may be distributed later.

The city has 27 families on relief at the present time, and regular food orders to these indigents are issued twice monthly. Besides food, the city furnishes coal, medicine and shoes when needed.

Ohio Convict Back On His Lofly Perch

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30.—Undaunted by the failure of a similar attempt Oct. 10, James Mason, 39, Ohio penitentiary's water-tower climbing convict, paced the catwalk of the 150-foot prison yard structure again today, hurling demands for freedom to the guards below.

"I want to get out of here," Mason shouted. "Set me free and I'll come down."

"He'll come down when he gets cold and hungry," Warden James C. Woodward declared. "He can't go anywhere, and when he decides to come down we'll be waiting."

Mason broke from line while marching to breakfast this morning.

Got His License, and Quickly, Too

LISBON, Oct. 30.—An excited young man busted into the probate judge's office Friday, his eyes sparkling with excitement.

"Can I get a marriage license—quick?" he asked.

Robert Burbeck, chief deputy, looked just a little surprised. So the young man explained as follows:

"I got a fine farm—fine outfit—good stock. All I need is a fine girl to stand beside me in the fields and work shoulder to shoulder. Now I got her and only an earthquake can stop me. So I want a license quick, if you please."

The deputy pulled the throttle way down and the legal machinery zoomed up to at least 1,000 revolutions per minute. The young man and his bride and the court permit hastened out of the office to a local pastorate, departing from this point presumably to live happily ever after.

Girl, 9, Plaintiff In $25,000 Action

LISBON, Oct. 30.—A traffic accident in which a nine-year-old girl was seriously injured was the basis of a $25,000 damage suit filed Friday in common pleas court.

The plaintiff in the action is Nelma Eileen Moore of East Liverpool who is suing through James Moore, next friend. She names Michael J. Zunich of Niagara Falls, N. J., as the owner of a car which struck her August 21 while she was crossing Jefferson st. in East Liverpool.

The petition states Zunich's machine ran over the child, permanently injuring her. Injuries received resulted in permanent facial scars and other lasting effects, the plaintiff asserts.

Zunich is charged with negligence and excessive speed in the petition.

REVOLVER TAKEN FROM PRISONER

Search Now Turns to His Brother, Last Member
Of Gang

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Federal agents scratched Frank Bird, convicted slayer and bank robber, from their list of "wanted men" today and turned to the search for his younger brother, Charles, only member of the Bird brothers' gang who escaped from the Cuyahoga county jail over a month ago still at large.

Frank Bird and his wife, Sylvia, also a fugitive, were trapped in a bulletless capture late last night as they drove up to the home of Mrs. Bird's mother, Mrs. Anna Seiber, in suburban Mayfield Heights, and walked into the house.

Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell said he had been informed by his men that the capture had been made by deputies and that federal men had arrived after the capture.

Deputies In House

O'Donnell said his deputies were in the house as Bird's wife walked in and that a member of the family was instructed to go out and tell Frank that the coast was clear.

Frank then came in and was captured, O'Donnell said.

"Shoot if you want," Bird was quoted as saying. He offered no resistance. Following the capture, the sheriff said his deputies notified Cleveland and suburban police and federal men.

A 38 caliber revolver was found upon Frank, the sheriff said.

F. B. I. agents refused to discuss the capture or say where the couple had been taken. At the county jail reporters were denied admittance by sheriff's deputies.

Bird and his brother, accompanied by James Widmer, escaped from the county jail here Sept. 23, in a daring armed break and a wild automobile chase through the city streets, leaving in their wake a fatally injured woman whom their speeding car struck down.

On Oct. 15, Widmer was captured in Philadelphia in a stolen car. The gangster told detectives he had left the Birds in Pittsburgh with their wives.

Awaited Trial for Robbery

The Bird brothers and Widmer were arrested here in July during an attempted robbery of a Cleveland Heights bank and were being held for trial in a series of Cleveland bank robberies at the time of their escape.

Widmer pleaded guilty to bank robbery in federal court after his return from Philadelphia and was sentenced to 65 years in federal prison at Alcatraz Island.

BAD OMEN

Results of organized labor's peace parley make a bad omen for early peace. Both sides have "gone away mad" and are threatening to refuse to get together again.

This seems to signify that they met for the purpose of proving their irreconcilability. Otherwise, they would not have permitted their conference to break up as it did.

The C. I. O. proposal to become an autonomous organization within the A. F. of L. undoubtedly was known to be unacceptable. The latter organization's counter-proposal for dissolution of C. I. O. and return to the original status likewise contained no opening for compromise.

Speculation now turns to possible intervention by President Roosevelt to bring the two organizations into harmonious understanding. Mr. Roosevelt will require evidence of better faith than has been shown so far before he risks his prestige as a conciliator by trying to reconcile an irresistible force and an immovable object.

HALLOWEEN GOODLUMS

Hoodlum is a strong word to apply to Halloween funsters, but they bring it on themselves by acting that way.

It's a certainty that no mere playful goblin would throw rotten tomatoes on front porches, stick pins in doorbells or demand a handout as the price of immunity.

This is all done in fun, of course, but it's strenuous fun after the first few weeks of it. Householders are mighty glad that Halloween, which really doesn't come till Sunday, is about over.

And if they insist on being grouchy about it, even to calling the more annoying funsters hoodlums, the Halloweeners must remember that they too, will be grown up some day and inclined to stick up for their rights.

The rising generation, which knows almost nothing of goblins and a great deal about hoodlums, may strike a compromise and call the mischief-makers who will make life miserable for them each October "goodlums."

The language needs a word for them.

VARIATIONS ON A THEME

So far as can be discovered by studying the speeches of the world's leading men, all of them are passionately devoted to peace.

So far as can be discovered by studying the policies of the world's leading nations, all of them are devoted to war.

The seeming paradox is easy to understand. Naturally, peace is to be preferred to war. But it must be peace on certain terms which, when they conflict with the terms of other governments, provoke thoughts of war.

Thus, nations prepared to go to war to preserve their requirements for peace. The United States went to war to save democracy. Italy and Germany are preparing to go to war to save fascism and destroy communism. Russia is ready to go to war to save communism. Great Britain is ready to fight to save representative government. A few weeks ago it appeared this country would fight to stop aggression.

There are infinite variations on the theme of peace, and all of them have a martial air. The most frightening indication of the imminence of war at the moment is the stress which the potential war makers are placing on their devotion to peace—peace according to their own arbitrary and conflicting specifications.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—Another editorial out of Kansas threatens to rival in popularity the famous William Allen White masterpiece: "What's the matter with Kansas?" Shortly before his passing a few months ago, R. E. Josh Wilson, editorial writer on the Wichita Beacon, penned the now famous: "When I Die."

It runs: When I die I shall accomplish in the millionth of the twinkling of an eye that which science through the ages has been unable to achieve. I shall have learned the secrets of the universe. Unfettered, I shall have proceeded the farthest star of the universal nebulae.

Knowledge of the infinite will be mine when I die. While loved ones gather round, perhaps to mourn, I shall know that in the heavens are many mansions. I have seen them on dark nights as I have contemplated the skies. And beyond those are countless more.

On Asterion may my spirit rest or I may pass through gates of pearl into a home of golden thoroughfares on a star the light of which has not yet reached the world wherein I have had my being. Or I may choose a planet for eternal residence, that its rays may be observed by those I loved below.

When I die, tho no shackles bind me, there will continue the ties of love which endure when the heart no longer throbs, warm blood no more to course through arteries that withered as twilight neared, the soul to soar in timeless flight. Thus I shall not be detached from things of precious memory, ages passing as swiftly as an instant is told by the hour glass within the garden's lovely walls. I may view from the firmament of space the tread, the dissolution and the resurrection of those whom I left behind. I shall be ecstatic, for their good deeds will have sweetened my everlasting peace, their remission of trivial moment before the great jurist who determines destinies.

When I die I shall mingle with kings who loved their fellowmen on earth, with commoners whose exalted works placed them near the throne on high. Trillions who have gone to dust to rise again will pass before me and I will know them all; for souls may remain as individuals yet they are as one, even as the sea is the assembling of drops of water drawn together through nature's powers.

Should my grievous world faults consign me to existence as an earth-bound soul until penance has been done, I shall be satisfied as I proceed through lower astral planes. I shall have no ills of body and my mind will prove serene in the knowledge that as I achieve atonement I shall be admitted to eternal joys. I will suffer no hunger or thirst nor will I endure distress for lack of shelter as I pass over extensive distances on the wings of night, unhindered by the elements.

I may look in upon a quiet fireside where sit those who were my friends; I may seek them out though they are beyond vast oceans in widely scattered lands. I may contemplate them in their endeavors, tho one is in London, another in antipodes. Physical space will mean nothing as I continue earth bound in expiation. I shall enjoy earthly contacts, yet be among the immortals.

Should it be that there is naught beyond the grave, still shall have been given me the greatest of boons that humankind desires.

What sweeter blessing do we ask than dreamless sleep? That shall be mine, should it be that when the soul takes flight from its encasement of flesh and bone it is no more. I shall then be beyond the sufferings of vitality, no uncertainties awaiting me in a celestial void. Priceless sleep. Why fear to die?

I have a letter from a reefer—marajuana—smoker, a jazz band musician who gives some interesting depressing highlights on the habit. He has known but two women—cabaret entertainers, who smoke the weed. He says users refer to such smoking as "tea." The vendors are called "pads." The most potent part of the reefer is the last drag, and that is why users hold the butt with a pin or tweezers to get this wallop. The smoke, to get the right effect, must be held in the lungs as long as possible. The writer states that under the influence one is "high." And that the sensation may be best described as floaty. He admits that in a few months he has lost weight and feels good only when smoking. Unconsciously he sounds a warning and preaches a sermon with: "Like all the reefer smokers I know, I started just as an experiment to see what the stuff was like."

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

ERYSIPELAS

ERYSIPELAS is an annoying and sometimes dangerous infection of the skin. It is not a new disease by any means, having been known for many centuries. The ancients used to call it "St. Anthony's fire."

Dr. Copeland

Under some circumstances, the severity of the attack and the rapidity with which the disease spreads from one person to another are quite remarkable. The germs of the disease enter the skin through an abrasion, a tear or the bruised tissues caused by a contusion. As a rule the infection is confined to the face, but any portion of the body may be involved. As I have indicated, the disease is highly contagious or infectious; for this reason the patient must be separated at once from other members of the family. It is only by means of rigid quarantine that erysipelas can be controlled and kept from spreading to others.

May Cause Fever

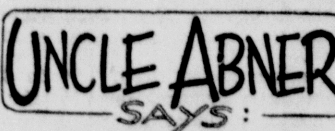

The victim of erysipelas first has a chill, and this is soon followed by high fever. For about 24 hours the sufferer may believe he has no more than a hard cold. But within a short time the characteristic skin rash appears. The area becomes red and swollen. Blisters form in the reddened region and, as the inflammation spreads to the adjoining normal skin, more blisters form. The surface becomes hot and itches.

This eruption lasts for about four days, when the involved patch begins to clear. Unfortunately, unless the disease is closely followed and kept under control, it will spread to other parts of the body. Occasionally the infection reaches the deep tissues, and gangrene may result.

In the serious type of erysipelas, the germs may actually enter the blood stream and cause general blood poisoning. This disease is particularly dangerous for one who is in a weakened condition and poor health.

For ages little was known about the control and management of the disease. All sorts and forms of treatment were advised, but they were unsatisfactory. I am glad to say that within recent years several new forms of treatment have proved to be successful. For example, it is now possible to treat the disease with a special serum made from a certain type of the so-called "streptococcus" germ. This is one that causes erysipelas.

In addition to the use of this serum, satisfactory results have followed small transfusions of clotted blood. This form of treatment has been especially successful in the treatment of the disease in infants. It advocates consider it a life saver.

Experienced medical skill is essential to the proper care of the erysipelas patient. The case must not be neglected.

"THE SILVER ROOD MYSTERY"

by Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER XXXI

Judge Wentworth tapped his desk, stared at the letter purporting to have been written to Nola Morin by her Aunt Grilda, and cleared his throat noisily.

"It is most amazing," Mrs. Stapleton said.

"And what do you want?" the judge asked Morin.

"My father," she replied, with emphasis on the "father," "left me a flock of millions, ten or a dozen, I don't want to get into a fight with you more than you people do, and I don't want to seem to be a grabber. I have talked with a lawyer, without giving him any details of what I meant, saying I was asking for a friend. He says that under the circumstances I should get at least half."

Judge Wentworth's bushy white eyebrows went up in a high arch and Mrs. Stapleton stirred, restlessly.

"I want a million, cash," Morin finished.

"Who wouldn't?" the judge said, when he became diplomatic again and smiled at Morin.

"I could get a lot more, if I took it to court."

"If the judge commented, rather dryly, the court would accept your proofs as genuine. I am not saying about that. If you are the daughter of the late Gerard Morin, Miss Morin, we agree that a share of the estate should go to you. However, we want more proof than a mere letter alleged to have been written by a woman now dead. Furthermore, if it is true that you aud knew that Mr. Monteth was your father and, as you say, your mother would not go to him, why didn't your aunt go to him?"

"I wouldn't know why, unless she loved my mother and so wouldn't go against her wishes."

"You have other proof, you say."

"Plenty. It seems that my mother went to the home of a midwife my aunt knew, in the country some place. Here, this letter will explain it."

There was no envelope. The stationery was cheap, and plainly quite old. The penmanship was fairly good and without any hint of German script influence. It was dated Feb. 14, 1912. It was addressed to "My Dear Grilda," signed "Nola," and stated that a baby girl had been born to her on the 10th and that both were well. She had named the baby Nola Morin, she wrote, and would be home in a couple weeks.

"Why the name Morin?" the judge asked.

"My mother's maiden name. After all, with a husband over in Zurich she never wanted to see again, and who wasn't the father, she wouldn't be likely to name me Lutzmann."

"The father's name has to be registered when the birth is turned in."

"That's what gave me my most trouble. You may investigate. You will find that a fire about twenty years ago, burned the town hall, or part of it and many town records in Carlsbad."

Nola Morin produced other letters. One postmarked in New York in 1915 from her mother to her sister Grilda. In this she asked how little Nola was getting on, and mentioned how terrible the war was.

After a silence Mrs. Stapleton turned to me. "What do you think, Mr. Stevenson?" she inquired.

I managed to get Judge Wentworth's eye and winked.

"Very conclusive. Of course, as a pure matter of form, all of these things—I indicated the papers—must be checked up."

"Naturally, the judge agreed. He smiled at Morin. "One doesn't hand over a million dollars without making sure. Miss Morin. If these are authentic, and they seem to be, to me, I can promise that you will receive at once the amount you ask. It seems to be quite within reason. We shall—need to go over these papers."

"I was thinking about that, Judge. If I leave all these papers and they should happen to get destroyed, where would I be?"

"I hope you don't think we would—"

"No, no, Mrs. Stapleton," the judge said, hurriedly. "Miss Morin is quite right about it. On the other hand—"

He seemed to be puzzled.

"I'm not saying you would do anything like that, but, now honestly—"

"Suppose," he interrupted, giving Morin the best sort of a reassuring smile. I could command, "that Miss Morin leave us just one of the letters—any one, and give us copies of the others. We can work from copies, and the one original will be sufficient for us to check up on."

"I brought copies of all. I knew you would want to keep these, my lawyer said the proofs should never be turned over except in court, or if the settlement was made out of court."

Miss Morin took neatly typed papers from the leather case.

Judge Wentworth stared at me, speculatively, a moment and then nodded.

"Very good. Any particular paper, Mr. Stevenson?"

"I wouldn't leave the letter from my Aunt Grilda," Morin declared.

"Any letter to your aunt, or one your aunt wrote to your mother, it doesn't matter," I remarked, casually.

Morin picked up the letter from

Mrs. Felder, alleged to have been left for her, and put it back.

"That suits me, take any one."

I pushed aside the letter dated Feb. 14, 1912, from Nola Lutzmann to her sister Grilda, announcing the birth of a girl on the 10th.

"When will you let me know?" Morin asked.

"We need a week or so. I have other matters that come first. Miss Morin, suppose you communicate with me in two weeks."

"Will it take that long?"

"I am an old man. I move slowly." He gave her a kindly smile.

Morin hesitated, then said, "All right, and thanks."

I went out with her.

"More detective work?" she asked.

"Not a bit, Miss Morin. You can see why I was there. You know that you were under suspicion at first. I was, for that matter, because I was with Mr. Monteth shortly before the crime. Now I am convinced that you certainly wouldn't have killed Mr. Monteth. What I came out for was to say that you are fortunate. Most people would have put up an awful beat. You can bank on it that you will get what you ask. These are all honorable people."

"You said it, Mr. Stevenson. Well, two weeks isn't so long."

"Good luck."

"You're not coming along?"

"Not at all. What has just occurred eliminates you from the list of suspects."

"Thanks."

I went back into the office.

The judge was standing at the window. Mrs. Stapleton was at the desk, studying the one original letter and the typed copies.

"She is heading for the station," the judge said and came back to the desk.

"What do you make of it, Mr. Stevenson?"

"If it wasn't for many things Mrs. Stapleton has told me, I would say that it was rather too stagey or fictional."

"What things?"

"The girl from Zurich, Mrs. Nola Lutzmann, was rescued from a life of cruelty, by Mr. Monteth. The girl was grateful. She was extremely pretty, and practically adored Monteth, who was around twenty-five then, and a dashing young man. Mrs. Stapleton says that when they got to Paris her brother found quarters for the girl. They were there some days. That was in May, 1911. A daughter was born in February, 1912."

"Humph, any woman could arrange dates in letters."

"That is why I held out for one. If we had demanded all, we wouldn't have got any. Will you entrust that letter to me?"

"Is it necessary?"

"I have great confidence in Mr. Stevenson, Judge. Do let him take it," Mrs. Stapleton asked.

"I suppose you have good reasons?"

The judge seemed loath to let go of this one original bit of proof.

"I think I have. I don't want to build your hopes too high, but I am not at all convinced that Nola Morin is on the level. I need that original letter for a while."

Judge Wentworth said, "Wait until I have a photostat made, you take that."

I shook my head.

"It won't help. Have the photostat made, then let me take the letter."

"I certainly would, Judge," Mrs. Stapleton urged.

"Very well. I will have it here for you tomorrow, Mr. Stevenson."

Three Key Ensembles for Debutante Wardrobe

Here are three striking and necessary outfits for the young debutante whose social season is now on in full swing. Sandra Storme wears a debut gown of white which has a distinctive youthful sophistication. The knife-pleated chiffon is draped on a flattering silhouette and the single strap of silver cloth holds the gown over one shoulder. Another costume that is smart as well as extremely useful is a spectator sports costume such as Kay

Francis is sporting. The dress is made of henna flannel, with tailored lines, a high neckline and a belt of beige leather. It is topped with a three-quarters length coat of beige broadcloth. For less informal occasions, such as tea dances and similar affairs, Anita Louise is wearing an admirable outfit. The dress is a black crepe surplice which boasts cornet jeweled clips. The lines are simple but elegant and the silver fox furs luxurious.

Portsmouth Plans A Higher Wall To Halt Flood Waters

(By International News Service) PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 30.—Again on the verge of another winter, which brings threatening thaws and dreaded rains, this much-maligned city of 45,000 in the heart of the Ohio river valley is girding for just another joust with the elements.

Last December the angry Ohio, swollen by torrential downpours of rain, held no terrors for the confident citizens. Even when the swollen tributary rose to within a few feet of the city's giant flood wall, 65 feet high, the populace expressed confidence in the huge mound of concrete to hold back the waters.

But what was deemed almost the impossible happened. The river surged over the lofty dike and down into the streets, driving residents to the uplands and forcing business men to close their stores and move merchandise.

New Flood Wall Considered

To guard against a recurrence of the havoc wreaked last winter, an experience that cost thousands of dollars, Portsmouth officials are considering construction of a flood wall 15 feet higher than the present barricade.

Lengthening of the wall also is being considered, the funds to come from the $24,677,000 Whittling flood wall and levee appropriation, a bill which passed three days before the last session of congress ended.

Heading the movement for a higher flood wall is City Manager Frank Sheehan. He has discussed the addition with members of the Ohio Valley Conservation and Flood Control Congress.

Other officials are negotiating with the Norfolk and Western railway and the Wheeling Steel company for rights of way. Twenty

VISITING BOARD MAKES REPORT

Jail, Infirmary and Orphans' Home Receive Compliments In Annual Report

Lisbon, Oct. 30.—The county jail, infirmary and orphans' home were complimented in a report received Friday by Probate Judge Homer Hammond from the county visiting board, but in each instance specific improvements also were recommended.

The Fairmount Children's home, jointly maintained by Stark and Columbiana counties, was found over-crowded, with some children living in the basement. The report added that a new school room was badly needed. Otherwise, the board found conditions "excellent."

In this connection voters will be asked to approve a special levy next Tuesday providing for the construction of a new 12-room school house at the home. The county's share for this addition is $50,000. Stark county will contribute $75,000 if the issue is approved. The specifications provide for the conversion of the present school house into a dormitory, relieving the congestion referred to by the visiting board.

The perennial recommendation for a new jail also was included in the report. Members expressed themselves as particularly pleased with conditions at the jail, which was described as "exceptionally clean and neat."

Installation of water facilities on the second floor of the infirmary were recommended. Lavatories and baths for the inmates on the second floor were stressed in this part of the report.

The board found the inmates well cared for; crops, with the exception of potatoes, good, and the stock in fine condition. "Excellent" was again employed to give the board's viewpoint on conditions at this institution.

WHY SALEM NOW HAS LIGHT ALL NIGHT

On January 1, 1934, the incoming Democratic Administration headed by Norman Phillips, found that the city of Salem owed the Ohio Edison Company $9,000.00. During the following two years this Democratic administration curtailed in every way and paid off the entire indebtedness.

In other words, when the present Republican Administration took office they found themselves in a much better financial condition as far as light was concerned than the Democrats found themselves two years before.

During the last year of Mr. Phillips' Administration, and during the past two years, George McArtor, now a candidate for Mayor, served as Chairman of the Council Lighting Committee. Much of the credit for reducing the old light bill should go to Mr. McArtor because of the work he did in this department.

However, the credit for giving Salem light all night during the past year should be given almost entirely to Mr. McArtor because in the rate, Mr. McArtor tested several sections with new low expense lights could be burned all night by changing the bulbs without any perceptible decrease in the volume of light.

Thus today Salem has light all night—the credit for which should be given to the Democratic candidate for Mayor, because it was the Democrats who paid the old light bill of the former Republican Administration and because through the initiative of Mr. McArtor it became possible to keep the city lighted all night at very little extra expense.

The Democratic Party of Salem calls this to the attention of the voters with the hope that you will give serious consideration to the candidacy of—

GEORGE McARTOR
DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

George McArtor has been a resident of Salem for 50 years. He has been in politics for the past 40 years, having served in council for 11 years and on the Board of Education for eight years during that time. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and belongs to the Carpenters' Local, the Odd Fellows and Maccabees Lodges. He has been a carpenter contractor in Salem for many years.

Reformation Rites To Be Held Sunday At Lutheran Church

Complete services for the church tomorrow are as follows:

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. Gaudin, superintendent.

There is a moral issue in the reformation problem. There is a matter of right and wrong in the problem. It is more than a problem of physical health. It affects our physical, mental, social, moral and spiritual health and through us can affect the life of another adversely. Dr. Martin Luther, editor of the Journal of American Medical Association, says: "The unmistakable place of alcohol in causing motor vehicle accidents is demonstrated in the tremendous weekend peak of accidents due to drinking." Here is a moral problem.

Morning worship at 11. Sermon by the pastor.

It was Oct. 31, 1517, that Dr. Martin Luther nailed ninety-five theses or statements on the castle church at Wittenberg, Germany. In these theses he stated certain principles of religion, which he was ready to defend in public. This was the beginning of the Protestant reformation. In this four hundred years, the Protestant church has grown to 230 millions of believers, which is almost one-third of all Christians in the world. The strength of Protestantism rests not in its teachings and doctrines, which reach back to Apostolic Christianity. Central teachings are: the supremacy of God's word, the Holy Bible; salvation is a gift from God, not a reward earned by man, and Jesus Christ must be the center of Christian faith and worship.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church Pays Honor To Luther Writing

Tomorrow, Emmanuel Lutheran church, 291 South Broadway, in common with hundreds of thousands of Christian congregations all over the world, will pause to pay tribute to the greatest event in the history of men since the beginning of that tremendous and far-reaching upheaval which history calls the reformation.

It was on Oct. 31, 1517, when Dr. Luther nailed his famous "Ninety-five Theses" to the church door at Wittenberg that the Protestant movement was born. And something infinitely better than merely a new denomination or group of denominations was born with it. The movement known as Protestantism placed renewed emphasis upon the ideals which had been forgotten.

One of the real and fundamental contributions of the Reformation, which completely overshadowed every other issue, was the placing of the Word of God in the hands of the common people. It was Luther who translated the Scriptures into the tongue of the masses and urged priests and pastors to see that every parishioner read and understand the Bible.

Luther is rightly given credit for placing the open Bible in the hands of the people. And the Lutheran church, which agrees with its illustrious founder in all matters of major importance, also believes that every man, woman and child should not only be given the privilege of using the Bible as a source of inspiration, instruction and comfort, but should consider it his sacred duty so to do. For how is the will of God to be done unless one knows His word.

Science Society Services Sunday

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship service of the Christian Science Society tomorrow. The morning service is also broadcast over radio station WHK in Cleveland the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. The regular mid-week service of the church will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

The Golden Text is: "Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law" (Psalms 94:12).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not... They are never wearying: great is thy faithfulness" (Lamentations 3:22,23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." He, who knows God's will or the demands of divine Science and obeys them, incurs the hostility of envy; and he who refuses obedience to God, is chastened by Love" (p. 241).

at fullback, and Stuart Wise, who alternates at quarterback with Bud Dean.

Everhart showed up well on cut backs into the line, while Wise looked good on end sweeps, dashing off two nice runs, one for 24 yards and the other for 14.

The remainder of the backfield glory is rightfully due Bill Malloy, the Quakers' right halfback, who does all of the punting but rarely carries the ball.

In addition to a fine job of blocking for his running mates, Malloy turned in the best punting performance of his career. One of his punts from deep in the Salem end zone traveled 60 yards in the air and took the Quakers out of a tight spot when Lisbon was threatening to score.

Olexa, who showed more than ever before that he is deserving of ranking with the best backs ever produced in Salem, scored all of the Quakers' touchdowns to run his point total for the season to 81.

The Quakers scored in the second, third and fourth quarters. Another Salem touchdown in the fourth period was ruled out by the officials because of holding on the part of one of the Quaker players.

Lisbon showed up best in the first quarter, holding the Quakers scoreless in this period. Near the end of the opening frame, the Blue Devils offense and defense bogged down and shortly after the start of the second quarter the Quakers pushed over their first touchdown.

A 28-yard pass from Olexa to Schaeffer, who was dropped on the Lisbon four-yard stripe immediately after he tucked the ball in his arms, set up the first score. Olexa drove over his own right tackle to cross the goal line standing up on the first play after the pass.

The attack which resulted in the first score started on the Salem 34-yard line near the end of the first quarter. By the time the period ended, the Quakers had advanced the ball to the Lisbon 42-yard line and three plays after the opening of the second period, Olexa tossed the pass which Schaeffer caught to place the ball in scoring position.

Lisbon came near tying the score in the late stages of the second period after recovering a Salem fumble on the Quakers 11-yard line. The Blue Devils tried four plays on a wide spread formation, but failed to make first down, winding up inches short of the Salem one-yard line.

Olexa played a lone role in the second touchdown drive which originated on the Lisbon 37-yard stripe where the Quakers gained possession of the ball after a Lisbon punt.

Taking a short pass from Malloy, Olexa raced to the Lisbon 21-yard stripe for a first down. Three plays later he crossed the goal line after making runs of 14, 4 and 3 yards.

Midway in the fourth period, the Quakers drove to the Lisbon two-yard line before a 15-yard penalty for holding deprived them of a touchdown. They came back shortly after this set-back to score for the third time.

Getting the ball on the Lisbon 36, Olexa made two yards before Wise dashed around the Salem left end for a 22-yard gain to the Lisbon nine-yard stripe. In three plays Olexa plunged over the goal line for the third touchdown.

The Quakers failed on all of their attempts for extra points. After the first touchdown, Everhart attempted a wide end run for the point, but he was nailed before reaching the goal line. Dean's pass to Schaeffer was incomplete on the try for point after the second score, while Malloy's place kick was low on the try for point following the third touchdown.

Unable to gain consistently with their running attack, Lisbon resorted to short passes over the line of scrimmage for much of its offense. The county seat team attempted 14 aerials and completed five for a total gain of 58 yards.

Three of the Lisbon passes were intercepted, Olexa pulling in one and Everhart snagging two.

The Quakers attempted five passes during the game, completing three of these for a total gain of 64 yards.

The Quakers held a decided edge in the ball-carrying department, gaining 195 yards from rushing to Lisbon's 76.

JOLSON FIGHTER CAPTURES TITLE

Henry Armstrong Floors Petey Sarron In 6th To Take Crown

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Over-the-weight or under-the-weight, it's all the same to little Henry Armstrong, the brown streak from the Pacific coast.

They said the Los Angeles Negro couldn't make the featherweight limit of 126 pounds and still be strong, but last night he came in at 124 pounds, almost knocked Petey Sarron's block off and won himself undisputed possession of the world 126-pound title.

Thanks to Armstrong's flying fists, the feathers now have a ruler at whom no stones can be cast. He's the king pin in states controlled by the National Boxing association, where Sarron formerly held forth, as well as in New York, California and other so-called "rebel" territory.

A crushing lunge to the pit of the stomach, quickly followed by a murderous right flush to the button polished off the game and clever Sarron after almost six rounds of sizzling milling in Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 11,847 parted with $24,708.29 to welcome Mike Jacobs into the Garden and see Armstrong, in many respects a miniature edition of Joe Louis, hang up his 22nd knockout in his last 23 fights.

The knockout climaxed five of the fastest, most furiously fought rounds Garden fans have seen in years. Sarron, off to a dazzling lead, blew it in the fifth and sixth when Armstrong finally got organized and began to go to town.

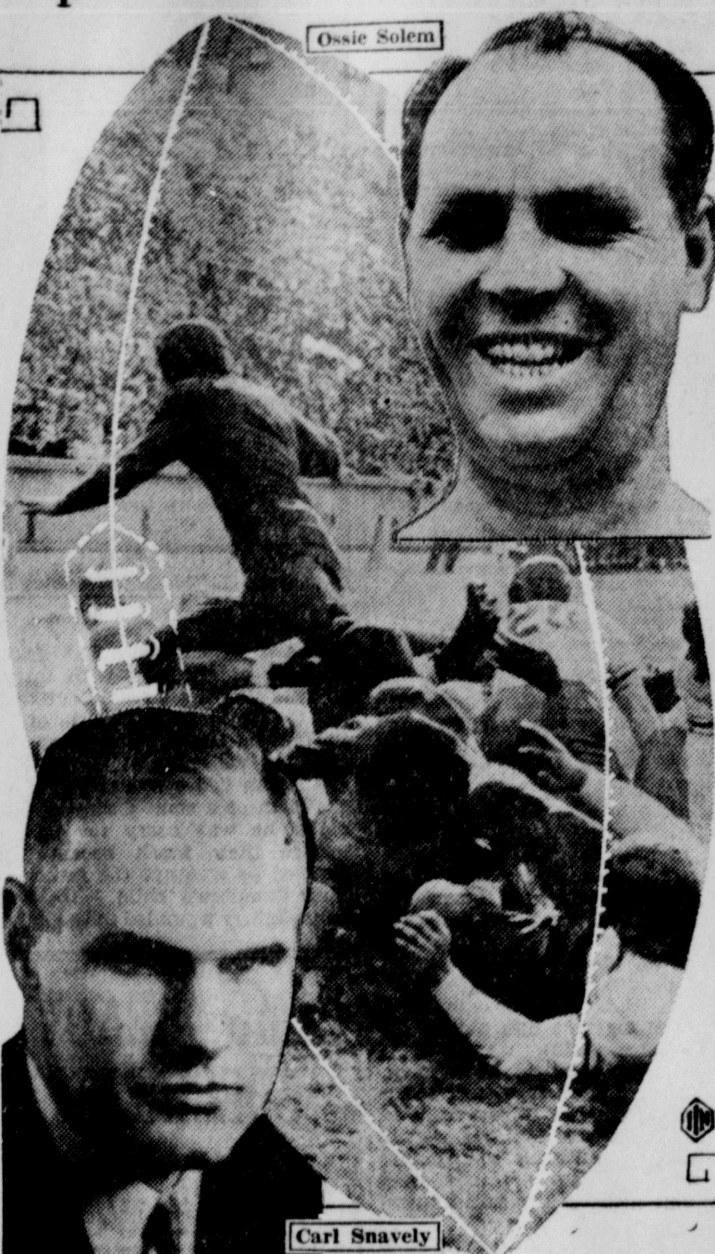

The Admiral was not far behind his rival's record of earnings. The 3-year-old boy has clipped in $145,470 to the coffers of Owner Glen Riddle, most of it from winner's purses in the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Standing 17th on the all-time list of money-makers, Seabiscuit, 4-year-old bay son of Hardack, 3-year-old has gathered $169,622.50 for C. S. Howard.

Watching all this rivalry with a pretty eye, pranced fleetly, T. P. Morgan's 3-year-old bay colt, who pounded Seabiscuit to a dead heat in the Laurel handicap and who has not lost in his last six starts.

Out for the blood of any win-hungry, over-confident up-stagers were Calumet Dick, Ella K. Bryson's 5-year-old son of Gallant Fox, who head Seabiscuit in the Narragansett special, and J. A. Manfuso's Aroerid, who gave only a nose to the champion in the Brooklyn handicap.

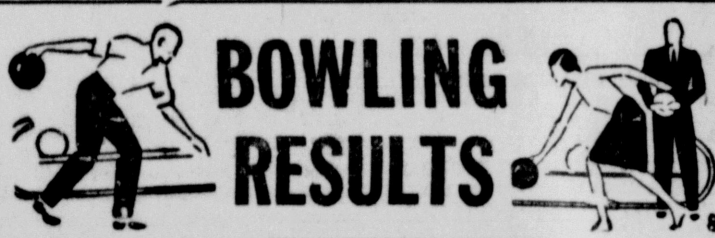

Upsets Mark Football Season

Ossie Solem

Carl Snavely

With the football season only half finished, an amazing number of gridiron upsets have been recorded. Two of the principal reasons why the smaller schools are proving giant-killers is because of the improved quality of their coaching and scouting. There is a greater number of smart, capable coaches today than ever before and even the little colleges are benefiting. The season has also turned out well for some of the grid mentors who are tutoring new eleveners, such as Carl Snavely whose second year at Cornell has been a good one, and Ossie Solem who put Syracuse on the map his first season there by upsetting the Big Red.

BOWLING RESULTS

With the first place Deming team idle because its match with the Electric Furnace was postponed, second, third and fourth place quintets took over the spotlight in the Federal Bowling league at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

The second-place Sanitary Shop team won three games from Brownie's Amoco Gas; the third place Sanitary Office won three from the Gas Co. and the fourth-place Columbiana County Engineers took three games from the Salem News.

In a special match at the Grate Recreation alleys last night, the Stillicious Chocolate Milks noed out the Columbiana All-Stars by two pins, 2335 to 2333. Ralph Greed led the Milks with a 531 series.

Rivalry between Masonic temple pin boys and the wood stickers from the Grate Recreation was touched off for the first time yesterday afternoon when the Grate pin setters won two games in a match with the Masonic stickers.

INJURY KEEPS SIDINGER OUT OF GRID GAME

Salem Tackle Will View Red Cats' Game From Sidelines

(By Associated Press) Handicapped by the loss of two regulars, Western Reserve's Red Cats invaded Gem City today to battle Dayton university's Flyers in the state's number one football classic which gives promise of reaching new heights for thrills and gate attendance.

Coach Bill Edwards, who announced that Halfback Johnny Andrews and his star tackle, Wayne Sidinger, would be out of the fray because of injuries, planned to throw 12 new plays at the Flyers in an effort to stretch the Red Cats' undefeated record to 29 games. Reserve has not lost a game since Edwards took the helm.

Edwards indicated Andrews might be sent into the game as a last resort in the event the going gets too tough, otherwise the diminutive halfback will rest his injured leg.

The Flyers, who have won all five of their games this year, base their hopes for victory on several flashy sophomore backs and a veteran forward wall.

Case, Ohio's only other undefeated and untied eleven, clashes with Miami at Oxford and is conceded to have the edge, but with Jake Wagner, Miami's star quarterback, recovered from injuries, the going might be tough for the Scientists.

That Coach Ray Zide is looking for a close battle with Miami was evident as he sent Chuck Hart, sophomore star, through an intensive place-kicking drill during the week.

Pinday and Mt. Union emerged the victors in two Ohio conference clashes under the floodlights last night with the former defeating Heidelberg 13 to 7 and the latter trouncing Ashland 24 to 0.

Two Buckeye loop games today takes Ohio university to Marshall and Cincinnati to Ohio Wesleyan's gridiron. Action in the Ohio conference will see Ohio Northern at Capital, Wittenberg at Oberlin, Marietta at Otterbein, Wooster at Muskingum and Bowling Green at Kent State.

Ohio teams battling in non-league games include Baldwin-Wallace at Springfield (Mass.) Y. M. C. A. College, John Carroll at Akron, Detroit Tech at Kenyon, Bluffton at Rio Grande, Tennessee State at Wilberforce, Toledo at Wayne, Center at Xavier, Deafness at Buffalo, Bethany at Hiram, and Lawrence Institute at Alfred Holbrook.

Ohio State's invasion of Chicago against the Maroons holds the spotlight in the Big Ten division so far as the Buckeye fans are concerned.

Advance Showing Of Derby Hopes
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 30.—Kentucky horsemen looked to today's running of the Kentucky Jockey club stakes for two-year-olds at Churchill Downs to give them an advance tip on 1938 Kentucky Derby possibilities.

The feature of the closing program of the Downs' seven-day fall meeting found local race followers leaning toward the Milky Way farms entry, Tiger, Mountain Ridge and Fire Marshal, in preference to six others.

Should Tiger fail to compete in event of a heavy track they held, Mountain Ridge should be able to turn the trick.

Other horses well thought of were Valinda farm's Diavolo Boy and Hal Prince Headley's Dah He. Other entries were Kings Heir, Glen Brush, Legal Advice and Alup. All were given impostes of 122 pounds except Glen Brush, allowed 118.

BUCKEYES LIST CAGE SCHEDULE

Ohio State Will Play 20 Games During Court Season

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30.—Coach Harold G. Olsen announced today a 20-game basketball schedule for his 1937-38 Ohio State team, a dozen of the contests being in the Western conference.

The latest additions to the slate were the University of Baltimore on New Year's day and George Washington university at Washington, D. C., Jan. 3. That holiday trip to the east is the only extended jaunt planned.

Of last year's team only Jimmy Hull, Dick Baker and Capt. Jim McDonald are back to form the nucleus of the squad. Thomas, Radabaugh, Dye and George of the 1936-37 team having been graduated. Olsen has had his hopefuls working for about two weeks, but said he couldn't do much until the football season ended and made his other talent available. Several men, now ineligible, are expected to get into the lineup during the second semester, opening soon after the Christmas holidays.

Here's the complete slate: Dec. 7—at Marietta; Dec. 11—Nebraska; Dec. 27—Creighton; Dec. 29—California; Jan. 1—at Baltimore; Jan. 3—at George Washington; Jan. 8—at Northwestern; Jan. 10—at Michigan; Jan. 15—Iowa; Jan. 22—Illinois; Jan. 24—Michigan; Jan. 31—at Toledo; Feb. 3—Ohio university; Feb. 5—at Iowa; Feb. 7—at Chicago; Feb. 12—Purdue; Feb. 19—at Illinois; Feb. 21—at Purdue; Feb. 28—Northwestern; March 5—Chicago.

Goodman Seeking Mexico Laurels

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.—Mexico's annual amateur golf championship tournament got under way today, but with Johnny Goodman and 16 other invaders on the firing line, the 1937 title figured to follow last year's crown into the United States.

The blonde shotmaker from Omaha, who followed his 1936 Mexico victory with a conquest in this year's U. S. amateur championship, was a top-heavy favorite to repeat his triumph south of the Rio Grande.

Pre-tournament practice rounds of 68, four under par, and 70 on a rain-soaked course showed he was at the top of his game and ready for the four-day tournament which opened with qualifying rounds today.

His chief threats were Johnny Dawson of Chicago, Don Schumacher of Dallas, and Percy J. Clifford of Mexico City.

Jr. Varsity Game Friday Cancelled
At the request of Boardman High school officials, a scheduled game between Boardman reserves and Salem High school's junior varsity football team was cancelled yesterday.

The game was to have been played at Boardman. No future date for the contest was set.

Football Reaches Halfway Mark With Classy Program Throughout Nation Today

Dartmouth and Yale Meet In Eastern Leader for Ivy League Honors; Notre Dame and Minnesota Tangle In Mid-West's Big Grid Contest

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Hold your hats, boys. Football rounds the turn today and heads into the home half of the annual fall frolics with as big and classy an assortment of star attractions as the season has seen to date. And the faithful will respond to the tune of half a million fans.

Dartmouth and Yale, both undefeated, untied and after "Ivy-league honors, set the pace for the east. Notre Dame and Minnesota, the powers-that-usually-are, tangle in the leading mid-west mauling. Undefeated, untied and very tough California clashes with U. C. L. A. in the Pacific coast headliner.

Baylor's battering Bears battle the anything but easy Texas Christian Horned Frogs in an effort to keep their unbeaten Southwest conference slate clean. All-conquering Alabama comes to grips with Kentucky and high-powered Vanderbilt tossed its "hidden ball" stunt at Georgia Tech in the south's top attractions.

Intersectionally, a somewhat slim but high class card is led by two battles between unbeaten outfits, with Fordham's tight defenses going to work on North Carolina's well-balanced Tar Heels in one, and Villanova taking on Detroit in the other.

The mid-western invasion of the highly-regarded Broncos from Santa Clara in an attempt to upset Marquette is another highlight. Despite the attack of dysentery that struck 11 of Dartmouth's Indians Thursday, the Yale-Indians' tussle figures to be a honey of a ball game anyway you look at it. Some 60,000 fans are going to be watching this tussle in Yale's big bowl.

The biggest crowd turnout is scheduled for Minneapolis, where a sellout of 64,000 seats has been assured for the proceedings between Notre Dame's Irish and Minnesota's Galloping Gophers.

There was plenty of action as some teams opened the football week-end yesterday afternoon and last night. South Carolina trimmed the Citadel, 21 to 6 and Tulsa rallied in the last quarter to down George Washington, 14 to 13, with a barrage of aerials. Duquesne whipped Richmond, 24 to 0, and Drake slaughtered Grinnell, 45 to 7, in other games.

Says Birth of Twins Was Fake

Mrs. Elva Mai Tortorice with sons.

Mrs. Elva Mai Tortorice of Pittsburgh and her divorced husband have been fighting in court for seven years over custody of their "twin sons". Climax to the legal battle came when Mrs. Tortorice was quoted as saying that the boys "are not twins, are not my sons nor my divorced husband's, and we both have known it all the time". She explained her amazing statement by saying it was all a fantastic hoax perpetrated in 1929 when she went to a hospital and entered a maternity ward where the boys, then a few days old, were brought to her from a Philadelphia orphan home and palmed off as hers to please her husband's three maiden sisters. She said she had finally disclosed the secret in hopes of ending litigation over their custody.
